GETTING READY FOR THE SHOWS

On Monday night next and continuing for the balance of the week the people of Dothan will have an opportunity with the Park Dramatic Company to witness some of the best plays that have been offered by the leading stock companies as well as the road shows, and at prices that are within the reach of all. Mr. Park has with him this time one of the largest companies that has ever toured the south, and are playing the high grade plays of the day, and in addition to the plays introduce some very clever vaudeville acts, so there is not a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain in the last act. The Agent is busy to day with men cleaning the Moody lot having the grass cut and the sand burs burnt, so that every thing will be in readiness for the opening on Monday night. Mr. Park is very much in love with Dothan and is without doubt one of the best boosters for the town on the road. There is no doubt but that the large tent will be filled by his ardent friends.

Why Democrats Should Not Be Deceived

Over in Tennessee a judge has held that all people holding a federal liquor license are liable for the penalty, that being prima facie evidence that it is being sold in violation of the state laws. Many of the dealers have surrendered their license, for the solicitor says he will do all he can to enforce the laws.

In Alabama it is different. We have a man running for governor, who claims to be a life-long prohibitionist, and he may be. There is but one place in Alabama where people can secure the names of parties who have taken out a revenue license to sell liquor in violation of the state laws. That place is from the office of the internal revenue collector, and that man is the Republican candidate for governor, running on a prohibition ticket, or on a ticket that he hopes to secure some prohibition votes.

Joe Thompson could furnish every newspaper, or every sheriff, or any man or set of men, with the true names of all dealers in liquor in Alabama. The federal law doesn't prohibit him, but they do not force him to divulge the real name. Hence the license can be, and are, issued to fictitious names that give no clue as to the location or the real party engaged in the illegal sale of liquor.

In such instances, it is nothing more nor less than the government's representatives protecting the blind tigers.

When Mr. Thompson is asked to furnish a list of the people, and their location, street number, etc., as provided by the state law, he answers not a word.

That is why he shouldn't get one single Democratic vote. He would pose as a man favoring the enforcement of prohibition laws to the voters, and when it comes to real assistance along that line, he gives none; he hands out no information not twisted from him by federal law.

We hope to see those redhot prohibitionists who have threatened to vote for a Republican before they would O'Neal, take a second thought, and make some real investigations as to how much of a prohibitionist Joe Thompson is. As a matter of fact, he is a good citizen, and no doubt is a prohibitionist, but his party thought this the time of its life to make a showing in Alabama, because of the recent disturbances we have had in Alabama, and therefore nominated Thompson, with no view whatever of his standing any showing, but with the idea that he would draw a few scattering votes from the Democratic ranks, and thus strengthen the claims for more apronage in Alabama. A worthy undertaking, to be sure, but one that no Democrat should be deceived in.

How Different

Since the Dr. Crippen trial it has been known that the people of England do things different to what they do at home. For instance, they run right through with Crippen's trial, found him guilty, passed sentence on him, and released the girl, and did it all about as quickly as we would get a jury empaneled.

To give us another tinge of English methods, one of the papers of London, which probably exchanges with Hearst's papers, got out a yellow journal story to the effect that Dr. Crippen had attempted to poison himself. Such a story would make reading for the easy-going Englishmen, and the city editor thought that he had put one over the rest of the papers. To make the story a go, the editor stated that Crippen had confessed to the murder of his wife.

It being a trumped up story, the court made some investigations and promptly took the editor into court and fined him one thousand dollars for contempt.

It would be a hard matter to make a contempt case against an American newspaper for such a story, but there ought to be a way.

What we have seen of English justice, we like it.

It seems that in New Jersey they have laws compelling children to go to school, and a story is sent out from there where a judge had brought before him a seventeen year old girl, charged with refusing to go to school. She explained to him that she didn't want to go, that it was very inconvenient to her, but the judge wouldn't budge. Then the young lady signalled her husband, who was in the court room, and her baby was brought around for the judge to examine. He, however, said that the law was there, and that so far as he was concerned, it must be enforced.

J. Pierpont Morgan recently gave $100,000 toward church unity, meaning, we presume, a step in the direction of getting the churches together. Probably they would do the same work, and probably not, but they had beat him that $100,000 before accepting it, if it shown that Morgan will have no chance to be president of the board of control, after the churches have all been merged.

Henry Clayton in making a speech the other day in Elba, likened Joe Thompson to the old lady who went into the store and called for a poor grade of cheap calico, and took some that was faded, shelf-worn and torn, remarking that was for a corpse anyway. He says that Thompson is a corpse anyway, and there is no need to take up any time with him and his campaign, to keep the pie-counter line-up in order.

It has been given out on the quiet that President Taft will soon appoint a negro as assistant attorney general. The negro is named Lewis, and lives in Boston. Also, it is said that another of Toledo, O., is to be appointed collector of customs at Honolulu. We are glad to see the president thus recognize that wing of the Republican party by appointing strong men in the north.

With women millionaires marrying penniless dukes, and man millionaires marrying poor actresses, the chances that the money that dad made will be returned to the common people in one way or another are exceedingly bright, thinks the Chicago News.

During the next few months, thousands of dollars worth of Houston county farms will be sold, and numbers of lots in the city of Dothan will change hands. They will all be sold at a profit, when they sell again it will be at a profit. Profit is sure when money is put into real estate in this vicinity.

Speaking of canary journalism, what do you know about the Evening Journal of Hearst's offering to sell a batch of editorials which it has gone to the expense of putting into book form? They are said to be the cream of the blackface, double-column stuff that has been appearing during the last year or two.

It seems that a breach has come between Sheriff Hood of Montgomery county and the governor, who appointed him to the office several years ago. The governor accuses him of not doing his duty toward suppressing the blind tigers in Montgomery.

The Constitution thinks that if congressmen were not paid a salary, but served for honor, as the members of parliament, that you would have to take out mandamus papers to get it off on a man.

MAN AND HIS WAY.

Harvey E. Garman is private secretary to Representative Rucker and a Democratic member of the Legislature from Denver. He was once a newspaper man, but got discouraged early in his career.

"I worried along as a reporter for a week," says Mr. Garman. "I didn't get anything very startling into the columns of my paper, it's true; but at the end of the first week I thought my fortune was made. One of my friends told me of the intended elopement of a girl of prominent family. She was going to marry a man much below her in social position. It was an event that would set the town by the ears, and I told my city editor I had a sensation to spring on a set date. After the date had passed he asked me about it.

"Oh, it's all off now," I answered. "The story is dead."

"What's the matter?" he asked. "What was it about?"

"I told him of the projected elopement and added: 'But there's nothing in it now. The girl's father showed up with a shotgun and spoiled the story.'"

"After the city editor had finished commending on my 'news sense,'" Mr. Garman said, "I decided to forsake journalism for politics."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Mark Twain was a firm believer in the national movement for good roads and had many a tale to tell about the incredibly bad roads of some sections.

A Hartford man recalled the other day this experience of the famous humorist:

"I once had thirty miles"—so Mark Twain began—"to go by stage in Mississippi. The roads were terrible, for it was early spring. The passengers consisted of five men and three women—three large, well developed men swathed in shaws and veils who kept to themselves, talking tones on the rear seat.

"Well, we hadn't gone a mile before the stage got stuck two feet in the black mud. Down jumped every man of us, and for ten minutes we tugged and jerked and pulled till we got the stage out of the hole.

"We had hardly got our breath back when the stage got stuck again; and again we had to strain our very hearts out to release her.

"In covering fifteen miles we stuck eight times; and in going the whole thirty we lifted the old stage out of the mud seventeen times by actual count.

"We five male passengers were wet, tired and filthy when we reached our destination; and so you can imagine our feelings when we saw the three women passengers remove, as they dismounted, their veils, their shaws and their skirts, and lo, and behold—they were three big, hearty robust men.

"As we started at them with bulging and ferocious eyes, one of them said:

"Thanks for your labor, gents. We knowed this road and prepared for it. Will you licker?" —Minneapolis Journal.

Where French Market Coffee Won Its Fame

Over 150 years ago the old French Market at New Orleans won fame through its exquisite coffee. It was a rare treat to stop at this celebrated market and sip of the delicious beverage—the only place in America where it could be secured.

The society dames of all the Mardi Gras Balls would not consider the event complete without a cup of French Market Coffee as a "nightcap."

In the War of 1812, after Andrew Jackson's brilliant victory, he stopped at the Market House and treated his troops to French Market Coffee.

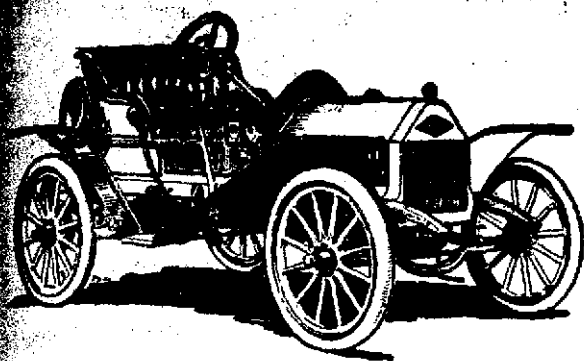

Then it could be had nowhere else. But today you may all serve it at your table for the old French Market blend is perpetuated by

To Spoil a Broom.

It makes me sad, said a broom maker, to see the way people use brooms. The life of a broom could be twice prolonged by a proper usage and treated properly it would be vastly easier to use.

You've seen people sweeping ahead of them, pushing stuff with a broom? Why the best broom that was ever made, of the best stock that was ever put into a broom, wouldn't stand such treatment as that.

With such handling splints will break off—the splints remaining jagged and uneven on the surface. You can never sweep clean with it after that.

Then you know the majority of sweepers always sweep with the same side of the broom to the front, and in this way they soon get the broom loaded, so that they can't use it in any other way. There couldn't be a worse way.

Used in this manner the points of the splints get bent all one way and then they meet together at their ends. They don't bite, they don't take hold of dust as they are meant to do, they don't sweep clean, and when a broom has come to this condition the sweeper is less careful of it, for then it is not so good a broom. Such a broom the sweeper feels that he may push ahead of him; and when he does this with it the broom is finally and irretrievably ruined.

Of course, the correct way to use a broom is with the handle, in its initial position, held vertically, so that all the splints in the face of the broom will take hold at the same time and evenly. In sweeping, the broom should be swung back and forth from a point back of the sweeper to a point at an equal distance in front. That is the proper way to use a broom, and then every day the sweeper should turn the broom around so as to sweep with a different side. Used in this manner, and turned daily, the broom wears down evenly.

I have seen—a delight to the professional eye and a comfort to everybody who likes to see any implement used to the best advantage, thoughtfully and con-siderately—I have seen brooms that had been so used that had worn down almost to the binding threads, but that still bit beautifully. I am perfectly well aware that brooms carelessly used, as commonly they are, wear out faster, with a corresponding benefit to broom manufacture; but still I do really hate to see anybody misuse a broom.—Tit-Bits.

Senses of the Blind.

Some interesting remarks about the abilities and a correction of an erroneous idea concerning blind people were made by Prof. McKendrick, late of Glasgow University, in a recent speech at Aberdeen.

Many blind people, he said, developed a marvellous faculty for music, which became not only a solace to themselves, but a source of enjoyment to others, and not a few developed a keen business faculty, and they were able to conduct complicated business affairs. He knew a blind man who was a manufacturing chemist, was at the head of a large chemical industry, which he not only carried on successfully but into which he had introduced many new methods and appliances.

When they saw what the blind could do they were prone to drop the popular opinion that in the blind there is a compensation by the other senses becoming more developed. That was an erroneous opinion. Prof. Kunz who was the director of the great institution for the blind at Illzach-Mulhausen, investigated this question with the aid of physiological methods by which the delicacy of the senses of the blind could be accurately tested.

He had examined in this way a large number of cases, and he found that most of the blind had senses just like those of other people, and that in not a few, as in those blind from infancy, the senses of the blind were, in fact, less acute than those of seeing people.

The average blind person did not hear better than the men who saw; nor were the senses of taste or smell, the sense of muscular movement or the obscure sense of locality more delicate. How, then, were they to explain the wonderful capabilities of the blind? Simply that they paid more attention to other impressions of the senses than the average person did. They paid attention to delicate variations in the pitch and quality of sounds, to muscular movements, and especially to the sense of touch. Thus they educated their senses, not by improving the sense organs, but by insisting that the registering clerk in the head office in the brain paid the most careful attention to all the little messages that came from the sense organs.

Importance Of Life Insurance

Do you realize the importance of life insurance? If not, you should begin thinking at once, for life is uncertain, and death is being the case, WHY DELAY?

To carry a policy in the Home Company that has just been organized in Dothan, cost you over TWO CENTS A DAY, and you would not mind paying that small to know that when you died, your family be well provided for.

Often you hear a man say "if I knew I was going to die soon, I would take out a policy but that is a poor argument, as many a man has died not leaving his family One Dollar because he thought he would live a long time."

This is where the uncertainty of life is, and where the wise man takes time to insure his family forelock and provides for the future of those that are looking to him for protection.

A SUBSTANTIAL INSTITUTION

Always prospers. The opening of the Campbell Institute of Shorthand and Accounting in Dothan, Ala., on Oct. 3rd 1910 is the beginning of what promises to be one of the most substantial business colleges in Alabama.

The young people do not have to go to the large cities and spend a small fortune getting a first class commercial training.

A good school of Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting and Commercial English, in a good little city, under the direct supervision of an experienced business college man, invites the youth of the South to accept this superior training at a very reasonable figure.

Not a Spectator.

At a large political meeting
where Gladstone was to speak, the hall was packed and the air was stifling. For some reason, says W. C. Brownell, who quotes the incident in a recent book as coming from James Russell Lowell, it was impossible to open the windows, and one had to be broken.

It was feared that the noise would startle the audience, and the Mayor stepped forward to explain what was proposed. The audience, however, had not assembled to listen to the Mayor and overwhelmed him with cries of "Gladstone! Gladstone!"

At last the misconceived silence by shouting, at the top of his lungs:

"I'm not going to make a speech! I've got something to say!"

"From George."

The Chicago Record-Herald repeats this dialogue.

Jeweler: Yes, sir, I will en-grave anything you wish on this ring without any extra charge.

Young Man: Well, inscribe on it "From George to Alice."

Jeweler: If-m The lady is your sister, maybe?

Young Man: No, the fact is this is an engagement ring.

Jeweler: Ah, my young friend
I have had considerable experience in engagement rings, and would suggest that the inscription be simple, "From George," and then it will do for anybody.

Acted Like a Dog.

Attorney General Wickersham brought the following tale back from the Northwest and told it at the White House, says the Philadelphia Record.

A man there was who was in mortal fear of his wife, especially when he indulged in spirits to excess and forgot to go home untill the early hours of the morning. One night he drank until he became hilarious, and it was in the small hours of the morning that he reached his home. He gained an entrance without arousing his sleeping spouse.

Shoeless he climbed the stairway, opened the door of the bedroom, entered and closed it after him without being detected. Just as he was about to get into bed his wife, half aroused from her slumber, turned and sleepily said: "Is that you, Fido?"

The husband, telling the rest of the story, replied: "For once in my life I had real presence of mind. I licked her hand."

An Atlanta negro deserves a prize, if there is one offered for the meanest negro. He took an old blind negro, and told him he could cure him. The blind negro believed it, and paid over $250, which was absolutely necessary. Then he drove a tack into the back of the old negro's head, and put him in hot blankets for twenty-four hours. Meantime he slipped off, but was later brought into court under a charge of cheating and swindling.
